DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Receipt is acknowledged of the Amendment filed December 29, 2005.

Priority

2. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in EPO on January 7, 2003. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the 03 000 201.8 application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 29-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Haines et al. (US 6,233,409B1) in view of Clothier (US 2004004073A1).

Re claims 29-31, Haines et al. disclose a component (toner cartridge 36) configured to be incorporated in and removed from an appliance (printer 30; col. 3, ll. 55-58) that can be connected to a user network (col. 4, ll. 43-49), the component comprising a memory storing (memory tag 36; RFID tag) information for identifying the component (col. 3, ll. 34-55).

However, Haines et al. does not specifically disclose a barcode label used to return the component.

Clothier discloses that RFID is similar to barcode technology except using radio frequency instead of optical signals. Attaching a barcode label is much inexpensive than an

Art Unit: 2876

RFID tag when identifying an article or an object. Because of its relatively cheap cost to generate a barcode label compared to other methods such as an RFID tag, it provides economical benefits to users.

In view of Clothier's teaching, it would have been obvious to an artisan of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to further employ a barcode label in addition to the teachings of Haines due to the fact that a user may gain substantial financial gain by using a barcode label instead of an RFID tag without compromising the desired results from using the barcode label.

Re claim 30, Haines et al. in view of Clothier disclose the component as recited in rejected claim 29 stated above, wherein the information for identifying the component is unique (col. 3, ll. 34-39) to the component.

Re claim 31, Haines et al. in view of Clothier disclose the component as recited in rejected claim 29 stated above, further comprising an access control unit configured (RFID tag is read by an interrogator 55) to allow information stored in the memory to be accessible to the appliance (col. 4, ll. 17-23) in which the component is located.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 1-28 and 32-39 are allowable.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: none of the cited prior art of the record teaches, discloses, or fairly suggests the claimed system and method for generating a label to return a component using a plurality of different network and memory device.

Response to Arguments

6. The applicant's argument and remarks along with the amendment filed on December 29 have been fully considered.
7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 29-31 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Claims 29-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 (a) as discussed above.

Conclusion

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
